A press release said this year's 22 participating companies included Intern2U.com, Sarawak Energy Berhad, Ernst & Young, Speedwing, Longi (Kuching) Sdn Bhd, Keyence Malaysia, Press Metal, CPA Australia, Intern2u, Tokio Marine, Out of Box, Nielsen, Hilti Asia IT Services, OBYU, Great Eastern, and Career Star International.

The event was supported by Swinburne University of Technology Sarawak Campus, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak, UCSI Sarawak, Segi College Sarawak, Executive College, Cosmopoint College of Technology, Technology College Sarawak, Lim Kok Wing Institute of Creative Technology, Sidma College Sarawak, Fame International College, PTPL Sarawak, SATT College, Sunway College Kuching, Asia Metropolitan University (Masterskill Global College Kuching), and International College of Advanced Technology Sarawak (ICats).

Visitors had the chance to speak directly to employers and find out what they are looking for in hiring the right candidates.

Students currently pursuing their studies were also able to find out about internship placements and training programmes.

A few companies offered on-the-spot applications and conducted face-to-face interviews.

SEB Human Resources executive Danielle Clarke said the fair allowed the company to recruit local talents, particularly in the fields of electrical, electronic and mechanical engineering.

"By taking part in this event, it also gave us the opportunity to highlight our company's corporate branding as we are commonly known as SESCO, and many are unaware of the bigger scope our company is involved in," she said.

Ernst & Young senior manager (tax) Anne Chong said the company sought to recruit technically competent candidates who are equipped with relevant technical skills, possessed excellent academic results, proficient in English, armed with a great personality, and the ability to interact with confidence.

"Ernst & Young offers a fulfilling career experience for its employees where we also provide in-house training to enhance their skills to enable them to move forward in their career," said Chong, adding that besides recruiting those with an accounting or finance background, the company also sought to hire those with an IT background.

Students benefit from the integration of industry needs in the teaching and learning process at Swinburne through capstone projects in the final year, internship opportunities with leading companies, career talks and guidance, as well as a global alumni network.
